DETAILS:

In December 2018, the people of the Sudan rose up in peaceful protest against the regime of then President, Omar Al-Bashir. After 30 years of rule, the people of the Sudan expressed their desire for a change for themselves and future generations. This movement resulted in the removal and imprisonment of President Al-Bashir in April 2019. Since April, the civilian protest movement has been in negotiations with a “Transitional Military Council” towards the establishment of a blueprint for political change and the path leading to that change. On July 17, 2019, the objective was achieved with the signing of an agreement between the military council and opposition alliance to share power for a transitional period of three years before holding general elections.

This historical achievement was reached principally through the mediation efforts of Ethiopia and the African Union. This arrangement has the support of Sudan’s neighbours in the Gulf and the international community at large.

Over the coming weeks, it is expected that a functioning government and administrative system will be established to govern the Sudan and its people.

How Does This Affect Orca?

Towards the end of 2018, Orca was in serious discussions on the advancement of its Block 14 gold project in the Sudan towards development. This was following the successful delivery of a positive Feasibility Study, clearly demonstrating the robust economic and production profile of the project (see Company News Release on November 7, 2018). Those discussions have been on hold during the negotiations towards a new political future for the Sudan. With the new accord, Sudan is poised to embark on a new era of growth and prosperity for its people and investors, built upon the establishment of a government focused on economic growth and open markets as well as strong alliances globally.

During the protest period spanning approximately six months, Orca has continued exploration at Block 14 and carried out a detailed engineering review of the 2018 Feasibility Study. Results of this work confirm the robust economics, production profile and growth potential of the project (see Table 1- Feasibility Study Highlights).

Orca is ready to re-engage with interested parties on financing initiatives for the development of Block 14. Upon the re-establishment of a ministerial structure in Khartoum, Orca will commence discussions with the new government of the Sudan in conjunction with potential banking and industry partners. Block 14 is ready for development and with a financing commitment, could be in production within 24 months. The Company is confident that Block 14 will be a priority project for the new government and people of the Sudan. Block 14 will capitalize on the Sudan’s significant gold endowment and create a sustainable business, which will generate significant skills, community improvement, employment opportunities, internal revenue and foreign exchange for the country.

On July 18, 2019, Orca announced the restructuring of its projects in Côte d’Ivoire. The principal purpose of this restructuring is to emphasize the primary focus of Orca’s management – the development of a gold mine in the Sudan. The expertise of Orca’s exploration team has been confirmed with the discovery and development of Block 14. That exploration expertise will now concentrate on Côte d’Ivoire, through Montage Gold Corp. (“Montage”). Orca’s sole focus now is to build a mine at Block 14.

“The business restructuring was unanimously approved at a recent Orca Board Meeting. Montage now has a separate budget, operation and financing structure, which preserves $8 Million in working capital for Orca and its initiatives in the Sudan,” commented Richard Clark, CEO & Director of Orca Gold Inc. “Orca is therefore well-financed to achieve its objective of project funding over the coming months. With the expected positive political developments in the Sudan and a strengthening global gold market, we are confident in achieving our objectives. We look forward to reporting on our success.”

On behalf of the Board of Directors,

“Rick Clark”
