HIGHLIGHTS:

- July 17, 2019: transitional power-sharing agreement signed between the Transitional Military Council (TMC) and the opposition alliance, Forces for Freedom and Change (FFC), for a period of three years
- August 4, 2019: The TMC and FFC sign constitutional declaration
- August 21, 2019: A Sovereign Council, including 2 women, declared to lead the Sudan for 39 months
- August 21, 2019: Mr. Abdalla Hamdok appointed Prime Minister by the Sovereign Council
- September 5, 2019: Prime Minister Hamdok appoints 18 Ministers, including 4 women
- September 6, 2019: African Union reinstates the Sudan
- Block 14 ready to build

DETAILS:

On August 4, 2019, the Transitional Military Council (TMC), which took power in the Sudan after the arrest of former President al Bashir, and the opposition Forces for Freedom and Change (FFC) signed a constitutional declaration, which was ratified on August 17 before regional and international witnesses. On Aug 21, after 25 years of military rule, a Sovereign Council was declared to lead the people of the Sudan during a 39-month period towards the establishment of an open, fair and transparent democratic process culminating in democratic elections in 2022-23. The Council comprises of six civilians and five military representatives and includes two women, one of whom is Christian.

Following its formation on Aug 21, the Sovereign Council immediately appointed Abdalla Hamdok as the new Prime Minister of the Sudan. Mr. Hamdok is an economist, a technocrat who has spent the last decades in the African Development Bank and the UN Economic Commission for Africa. On Sept 5, Prime Minister Hamdok appointed 18 new Ministers, with two more to be named. The new Cabinet includes the Sudan’s first female Foreign Affairs Minister and a former World Bank economist. Mr. Hamdok has stated that the immediate issues for his new government are the Sudan’s economic situation and achieving peace throughout the country.

The Sudan’s new Government has the approval and support of the people of the Sudan and the international community at large, including the United States of America. On September 6, the African Union reinstated the Sudan’s membership. The establishment of the Sovereign Council and a new government under the direction of Prime Minister Hamdok herald the start of a new era for the Sudan and its people, an era that looks to prioritize peace, economic restructuring, human rights, equality, freedom of speech and the international community.

With the appointment of a new Government and new Minister of Mines and Energy, Orca is recommencing discussions with the Sudan towards finalizing documentation to allow commencement of mine development at Block 14.

With stability in the Sudan and a collective objective of setting up a democratic process, Orca management is very optimistic about the prospects of near-term financing for the construction of a mine at Block 14. Over the coming weeks and months we will be working closely with the government of the Sudan and financial parties to achieve this objective.

Block 14 is one of the best construction-ready projects in Africa and highlights the potential of the Sudan to develop into one of the largest commercial gold producers in Africa.
